Apparent murder: workers find dead man in parking lot

■ Police seeking clues to identity of man who may have been dumped in parking lot of Industrial Blvd. business

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento police are looking for help in finding the identity of a possible homicide victim located yesterday in a parking lot on the 2500 block of Industrial Blvd.

When nearby employees reported for work on Tuesday at about 7:30 a.m., they found the body of the man in a corner of the parking lot. An ambulance and firefighters responded, and discovered the man was dead.

"There were injuries on the man's head and bruising on his neck," said Lt. Ron Moore. "We're pretty certain it was a murder. We think he was probably brought here. We're pretty sure (the assault) happened during the evening and he was probably brought here afterwards. "

Moore added that the cause of death was unknown, and an autopsy was being performed.

The man "may or may not be a transient," he said.

The victim was described as a white male, age 35 to 45, about 5' 10" to six feet tall, and weighing between 160 and 185 pounds. He had red hair, about collar length, a red beard, a bald spot on his head , and unidentifiable tattoos on his wrists.

The man may have been wearing a green "Salem" baseball cap found nearby. He wore a yellow button-up shirt and blue jeans with the letters "A.J." on a tag. The hat, along with what were possibly the man's shoes, were found about 15 to 20 feet away from the body.

The results of a fingerprint check were expected later Tuesday, and were hoped to provide information on the victim's identity.

Moore described the injuries as probably "blunt trauma to the head, and possible strangulation marks" on the neck, but emphasized that the autopsy had not yet been performed.

Anyone with information is asked to call the police department at 372-2461.

Sort-of-closed, but not flooded. . .

A pedestrian dashes across Harbor Blvd.

The sign proclaiming that Harbor Blvd. north of West Capitol to be "Flooded" seemed a little questionable during yesterday's 76 degree weather. But the other signs which said that the road was closed to through-traffic, while remaining open for business at places like Harbor Marine and Supply Hardware, were on the mark.

The road is being widened by city contractors.

Council weighs safety, postpones decision on Gateway

By David Weller

After hearing more than two hours of public opposition to the proposed Gateway housing development, the city council decided to postpone a decision on allowing construction to begin until May 17.

The council hopes that the traffic safety concerns will be addressed by that date.

Gateway is the first of four developments proposed for Southport. It has become controversial among Southport residents because of the high density of housing units proposed, and because it will put additional traffic pressure on the barge canal bridge.

The traffic corridor across the bridge has been declared unsafe by the council. A building moratorium has been in place since 1991 which stops construction that will cause additional traffic to Southport until a new bridge is in place across the canal.

If the development is approved, Granite Power will be required to build a left hand turn lane from the Jefferson Blvd bridge to South River Road in order to lessen the impact of construction vehicles on traffic across the bridge.

> 'Denying our appeal will jeapordize the safety of everyone who travels on Jefferson south of the bridge.'
> --Nels Eklund

The turn lane would allow about 11 cars to line up before traffic would back up onto the through traffic lane of Jefferson, on the bridge.

In keeping with the moratorium, nobody would be allowed to occupy the Gateway houses until the new bridge at Industrial Blvd is completed.

Already approved by the planning commission, the issue came before the council on an appeal by several Southport residents.

Although residents have complained about several issues including housing density, quality of development and inadequate notification of public hearings, traffic safety was the issue weighing most heavily on the minds of the residents who testified.

Believing that the turn lane would provide a sufficient margin of safety for the beginning of construction, city staff recommended that the permit be granted, contingent upon approval of the Southport Framework Plan.

Several residents, however, called into question the assumptions made in the traffic models which predict that a new Industrial Blvd bridge will alleviate thirty percent of the traffic pressure on the Jefferson bridge.

Senior Planner for West Sacramento, Terry Roberts, defended the city's position on the issue. "Staff believes that this is not an unreasonable assumption. Fifteen percent of cars during peak hours are turning left at Stone to get to the west side of the city. We believe that with the additional bridge, that number would stay and perhaps grow," she said.

In addition, Roberts said that Caltrans has already imposed an additional safety study as a condition of approval for the turn lane.

In response to Roberts' statement, resident Pat Ditlevsen testified that she turns left after crossing the bridge in order to avoid the traffic at the intersections approaching West Capitol Avenue. "We personally take that left hand turn all the time, but we do so to avoid that congested intersection," she said.

Another resident, Nels Eklund, brought up the possibility of lawsuits against the city if more accidents occur on the bridge after construction begins.

County planners finish report on endangered species habitat plan and look for public input

By David Weller

Planners for the Yolo County Habitat Management Program held a public meeting in Winters Thursday night to discuss the progress the program has made toward developing a county-wide endangered and threatened species mitigation program.

The idea behind the program is to give local developers an alternative method of complying with state law requiring them to mitigate the effects of building on land currently inhabited by species of animals or plants listed as threatened or endangered by the federal government.

Currently developers pay a mitigation fee to the California Department of Fish and Game. The department is using those fees collected from Yolo County developers to help the county pay for developing the habitat management program.

At this point, program consultants have mapped the habitats of a few dozen listed plants and animals in the county. They have also projected that Yolo County will develop about 10,000 acres in the next twenty years. Forty to fifty percent of that development is expected to occur in Southport, the southern half of West Sacramento.

Areas along the river in Southport have been identified as Swainson's hawk habitat, the most famous of Yolo County's endangered species. So far, none of the development plans in Southport have included Swainsons hawk habitat mitigation as part of its plan.

It has been a hope of West Sacramento planners that land can be found in the county to set aside for mitigating the effects of Southport development.

Another restriction habitat management planners are laboring under, however, is a county requirement that development mitigation plans cause no net loss of agricultural production.

The four studies completed by EIP, the environmental consulting company hired by the county and the four cities in the county cover land use, agriculture, economics and biological resources.

The reports are available at the West Sacramento branch of the Yolo County library.

Now that the technical reports are complete, the steering committee and the consulting firm plans to gather more public input at a meeting in June.

The committee expects to complete a draft habitat management plan by this summer, and a final plan by the winter of 1996.

Conclusion in sight for ambitious, 7,000-acre master plan for West Sacramento's south half

West Sacramento's City Council will begin deliberation on the Southport Framework Plan at their public meeting on May 10 at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd.

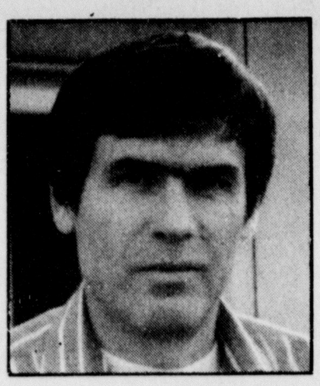

The plan is intended to provide greater detail to the city's general plan in outlining the future of Southport, West Sacramento's 7,000-acre southern half.

Written by the planning firm PBR, the plan projects over 40,000 residents will live in Southport at buildout (about 30,000 now live in the entire city of West Sacramento). The project area is bounded by the Sacramento River to the east, the barge canal and deep water channel on the north and west, and the city limits to the south.

The plan allows for residential, commercial, industrial and recreational uses of Southport, along with open space.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

The other night, as I stumbled around in the dark on my way to the kitchen to grab a late night snack, I suddenly spotted my seventeen-year-old son, slumped in a chair at the kitchen table, with the telephone pressed to his ear. Not wanting to disturb his conversation with his girlfriend (they often talk on the phone when they're both supposed to be in bed), I quietly made my way over to the refrigerator, opened the door, and began searching high and low for something which might excite my taste buds. I finally came across one of those horrible little packaged cups of chocolate pudding all my kids like to wolf down, said what the heck, and prepared to add another dozen or so points to my triglyceride count.

As I fumbled around in the utensils drawer looking for the right sized spoon, I also observed that although my son continued to hold the telephone receiver tightly against his ear, he wasn't saying a word. "So, does she have you on hold or what?" I finally asked.

He placed the palm of his hand over the bottom of the receiver and whispered, "We're kind of having a fight -- get out of here."

"What about?" I whispered back.

"It's a long story," he assured me, slowly shaking his head like he often does when he secretly wishes someone would quickly invent a magic 'make-my-father-disappear' wand.

"You know," I said, opening my pudding cup, "I think it's really interesting the way you two can argue over the telephone without actually talking to each other."

"Come on, Dad," he pleaded, "I'll be off in a few minutes -- I promise."

"What are you two fighting about this time?" I asked, forcing myself to swallow what turned out to be a disgusting bite of a glue-like substance from the pudding cup.

"If I tell you, will you leave?"

"Absolutely," I lied.

"Well," he said reluctantly, "if you gotta know, she wants to go to the prom, and I don't." I couldn't help but smile. "What's so funny," he demanded.

"Do you have any idea -- I mean any idea at all -- of how much trouble you are about to get yourself into?" I asked.

"What are you talking about?"

"My poor, poor boy," I said, chucking the pudding cup, "I'm afraid your high school prom happens to be just the first of many, many events a man who has a girlfriend or wife must attend -- whether he likes it or not."

"But I don't want to go," he said with sincerity.

"Son, there is no choice involved in this," I assured him.

"But it costs fifty dollars just to get a bid," he explained. "And then I have to rent a tux and somehow come up with enough money to pay for dinner and pictures."

"True love demands many things," I said, "but above all, it demands that one not be cheap."

"It's not the money," he explained. "I hate wearing a tux -- I hate going out to fancy restaurants -- and everybody says the dance itself is always a real drag. I just can't believe she's making such a big deal about it."

"Well," I said, "I guess this is as good a time as any."

"For what?"

"For that little talk I've been meaning to have with you."

"Come on, Dad, get out of here!"

"You see," I began to explain, "throughout the centuries, women have been dragging their men -- young and old -- kicking and screaming -- off to proms, operas, theater and ballet performances, fancy dinners, plays, movies, weddings, you name it -- and do you want to know why?"

"Why?" asked my son, suddenly interested.

"Not because they like to sit around at a boring prom, watch a lousy play, or hear opera singers scream at the top of their lungs, that's for sure," I said.

"Then why?"

Now it was my turn to whisper. "Because they like to get dressed up."

"What?"

"That's right. They really love to get dressed up. And if you are silly enough to refuse to take them to places or events where they can wear all the wonderful outfits they have laboriously collected from hundreds and hundreds of shopping trips -- well, the consequences are just too horrible to even mention."

"So, you're saying that I should go to the prom?"

"Well," I said, patting my son lovingly on the shoulder, "only if you want to live to see another day."

NOTE: I also wanted to pass along something a friend of mine said when she turned on her television set the other day and saw that shackled idiot who blew up all those innocent people in Oklahoma City strutting towards a waiting police van. Her exact words were, "Where is Jack Ruby when you need him?"

Dear Son:
It's been two of the longest years of my life. There isn't a second that goes by that you're not in my thoughts, and the pain only deepens as the days go by.

You were the greatest gift God ever gave me, and now, when I look up in the Dark Sky, I always know that brightest star has to be you.

Your loving mother, who was very proud of you and will never forget you. My precious angel, love always and forever, Mama, Deanie Arreola, XX; your sisters, Shelley, Maria, Christina, Connie, Isabel; your brothers Margeto, Lupie, Sleepie; and all your carnals.

I cannot say, and will not say
That he is dead -- he is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land and left us dreaming now very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there;
So think of him faring on, as clear in the love of there
as the love of here:
Think of him still as the same, I say;
He is not dead -- he is just away!

Deeply missed by Kid, Mother, Father, kids, Sister, Brother, Companions.

The Major League umpires signed a five-year deal with the baseball owners and ended their 120-day walkout. The base salary for most umpires will rise by $20,000, which is a raise of 25 percent for rookie umpires and 37.5 percent for senior umpires. The salary scale for base pay will be $75,000 to $225,000!

The Giants and Dodgers tangle early this season, but the fans stayed home. The Giants' paid attendance for Monday's Giants 7-0 victory over the rival Dodgers was 10,828, but 4,415 fans were no-shows. It was the weakest Giants-Dodgers game since Sept., 1985 when 10,297 paid -- but that year, the Giants lost 100 games. The good news for the Giants is that Glenallen Hill has two home runs, as does J.R. Phillips, but J.R. has struck out ten times in his first 16 plate appearances.

Barry Bonds got his first hit of the season on Monday after going hitless in his first five games. The bad news is the Giants' starting pitching could be a major problem this season. Salomon Torres filled in for an injured VanLandingham and got bombed by Florida, giving up three home runs and seven runs in two innings.

The A's home opener is on Friday, May 5, against the Texas Rangers, who may be without Will Clark, who cracked his elbow on the stands chasing a foul ball.

The NBA playoffs are finishing its first week with some great games. the Orlando Magic beat Boston by 47 points in their first game (the worst loss in Celtics history), then the Celtics turned it around in the second game, beating Orlando 99-92, which was only Orlando's third loss this season at home!

Michael Jordan went wild in Charlotte, scoring 48 points and the Lakers have the Sonics reeling again and facing a first-round elimination for the second year in a row.

Pay for View has a great boxing match on Saturday, May 6, featuring Oscar De La Hoya vs. Rafael Ruelas at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. This will be the fight of the year! The fight is even money in Las Vegas!

De La Hoya will win in a ninth round TKO, but don't be surprised to see both fighters hitting the canvas!!

Tickets are going fast for the "KO at Arco" on Saturday, May 13, featuring Lennox Lewis and Lionel Butler and 64 rounds of boxing. West Sac's Willie Jorrin (10-0) takes his undefeated record into the ring to face Max Maldanado in his first ten round bout.

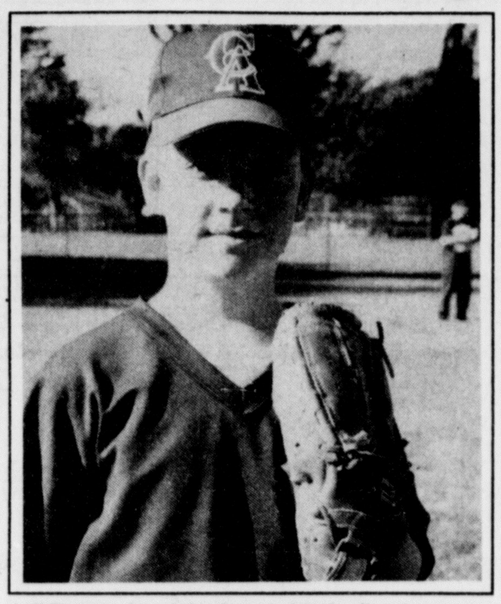

Tickets are scaled from $22 to $77, and can be picked up at Travel Destinations, 1420 Merkley Ave., Suite 1 (371-6163, ask for Michael); or call me at 372-7332.

See ya next week!!

RCHS baseball goes two for three

By Chuck Robinson

River City High School's varsity baseball team had a tough week. They played three top teams, lost one game and won two. The Raiders lost to Lindhurst 15 to 2; they did not play very well. River City scored 2 runs on 8 hits, 5 errors, while Lindhurst scored 15 runs on 14 hits, 0 errors.

Hitting was Alex Victor, 1 for 3; Jeremy Deaton, 2 for 4, HR, 2 RBI's; Justin Hanks, 1 for 2; Craig Martinez, 1 for 1; Matt Degroot, 1 for 2, 2B; Dan Torres, 1 for 1, 2B; and Josh Castro, 1 for 2.

Last Wednesday, River City played a make-up game with Colfax and won 5 to 1. River City scored 5 runs on 7 hits, 3 errors. Colfax had 1 run on 4 hits, 3 errors. Ryan Carr was the winning pitcher and Justin Hanks was the catcher. Hitting was Brandon Myers, 2 for 3; Matt Degroot, 1 for 2, 1 RBI; Craig Martinez, 1 for 3, 2 RBI's; Randy Byard, 1 for 3, 2B, 1 RBI; and Josh Castro, 2 for 3, 2B, 1 RBI.

Last Thursday, River City beat Marysville 4 to 3. The Raiders scored 4 runs on 6 hits, 1 error. Marysville scored 3 runs on 3 hits, 3 errors. Justin Hanks was the winning pitcher; Craig Martinez did the catching. River City scored 2 runs in the second and Marysville came back to tie it at 2 all. In the third, Justin Hanks hit a long fly ball to center to score the go ahead run, but Marysville came back and scored to tie 3 all. In the top of the sixth inning, Justin hanks hit a 360-foot home run for the winning run. Justin Hanks pitched a terrific game and had 14 strike outs. Hitting was Alex Victor, 1 for 4; Josh Castro, 1 for 4; Justin Hanks, 1 for 2, HR, 2 RBI's; Brandon Myers, 1 for 3, 2B; Craig Martinez, 1 for 3; and Randy Byard, 1 for 2, HR, 2 RBI's. River City's first two runs were Randy Byard's home run. River City's record overall is 10-7 and 8-2 in league.

This Tuesday, River City plays Colfax at home. They travel to Golden Sierra on Thursday. The Raiders will play their last two games next week -- at Lincoln on Tuesday, and at home against Encina on Thursday.

RCHS tennis stays on winning track

From River City High School

After five consecutive weeks of road matches, the River City High School tennis team finally returned home for a trio of Golden Empire League matches this past week. First up for the Raiders was a Lindhurst team that R.C. had shut out in Olivehurst earlier in the season. the result was more of the same in West Sac: a 7-0 Raider victory.

If anything, this win was even more lopsided than the first meeting, when the Blazers got 45 total games off of the Raiders. This time, R.C. only allowed 20 games in the seven matches.

In boys' singles, #1 Bounthay Bouttavong won 6-1, 6-1 and #2 Peter Santizo won 6-4, 6-2. On the girls' side, it was #1 Hoang Truong, 6-0, 6-1 and #2 Chanthaphone Inthirath, 6-1, 6-2. In doubles, R.C. won mixed by default, the boys team of Ty Fisher and Ahmad fazel triumphed 6-4, 6-2 and the girls duo Mirthala Santizo and Khonthavy Phouanglasy cruised 6-0, 6-2.

Next up for the Raiders were the second place Falcons from Colfax. In a match that ended up much closer than the Colfax 5, River City 2 score would indicate, the Raiders received victories from Inthirath, 6-1, 6-0, and Mirthala Santizo and Meuy

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Land Institute study: a setback, but not a fatal one

The region sees lots of planning studies come and go. Some never make a difference; others change the future.

A panel of planners from the Urban Land Institute recently wrote one study affecting Sacramento, West Sacramento, and other locales. Their study will probably "stick."

What they said was that the State of California ought to concentrate their needed new office headquarters on land it already owned, in Sacramento's Capitol Park area. This point of view considers only the state's selfish interests, and does not take into account what local governments such as West Sacramento and Sacramento are trying to do.

It did not count that these cities are trying to lure state offices to areas outside the Sacramento downtown area in order to spur growth in areas like the West Sacramento riverfront or Richards Blvd. in Sacramento. Rightly so -- these considerations are, and should be, minor ones for the state. After all, its primary responsibility is to get the best deal for the state's taxpayers as a whole.

Because the U.L.I.'s findings make a lot of common sense, because the panel is so well respected, and because the recommendations provide the state with an easy way out of the frying pan it created through the regional bidding process for new state offices, the U.L.I.'s opinions will likely be taken to heart by state officials.

This is a setback for West Sacramento's grandiose downtown vision, which was already on a slow track for development and now will be slowed further.

But it doesn't spell the end of the vision. It will simply take more effort, and more time, to realize the riverfront dream.

Now, instead of hoping to attract a state office or two as "anchor" tenants, West Sacramento will probably have to rely almost solely on private sector tenants to spur downtown development. And California's slow economic recovery will have to proceed a little further before that is likely to happen.

At least one U.L.I. panel member made a suggestion, offering the panel's hired services to take a similar look at West Sacramento's plans and offer insights and suggestions. West Sacramento should take the U.L.I. up on such an offer.

Letters to the Editor

Jefferson Blvd.

An Open Letter to John L. Allison, Director, District 3, California Department of Transportation, from Cindy L. Tuttle, Mayor of West Sacramento:

As you are no doubt aware, another serious accident took place last weekend on the Jefferson Bridge here in West Sacramento, resulting in the death of two people. Although this incident does have somewhat of a negative impact on the tally of serious accidents on or around the bridge, the impact on the family and friends of the victims was devastating.

Our plans to eventually widen Jefferson Blvd. from Linden Road to U.S. 50 should significantly reduce the threat to public safety posed by the current configuration. CalTrans has been, and continues to be, extremely helpful in moving forward this project that will provide the long-range solutions.

Unfortunately, as we move towards our long-range solution, people continue to be hurt and killed. The situation that currently exists cries out for attention. That cry for attention was expressed Wednesday night at the City Council meeting with the unanimous adoption of Emergency Resolution 95-28, a copy of which has been enclosed.

What the City Council has declared an "Unsafe Traffic Corridor" is of great concern to us. Not only are significant accidents occurring along that stretch of State Route 84, but when one occurs on the bridge, it effectively shuts off the southern half of the city from public safety and emergency services until the scene has been cleared.

We are hopeful that the task force that is specifically requested in Emergency Resolution 95-28 is initiated within the next few weeks. We look forward to working with you in that forum towards some meaningful solutions. The City's point of contact on this issue is our Chief of Police, Larry Gore. He can be reached at 373-5830.

We appreciate your cooperation on the many projects in which we are jointly involved and look forward to your assistance on this matter.

Health Centers

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the Sister/Friend Project, a program of CommuniCare Health Centers (formerly The Community Clinic), for receiving a Runner-Up Golden Rule Award. A thank you goes to J.C. Penney for sponsoring the Golden Rule Awards that annually recognizes outstanding volunteer projects in the Sacramento/Yolo region. The Golden Rule Awards are also co-sponsored by the Volunteer Centers of Sacramento/Yolo Counties.

The Sister/Friend Project is a volunteer mentoring program for pregnant and parenting women in Yolo County. Volunteers are Yolo County women who give two hours of their time each week to help other women in need of emotional support, encouragement, and practical assistance as they learn to manage their own lives. The program goals are to facilitate prenatal and continuing health care and drug-free relationships. This is accomplished by providing one-on-one support, pairing each volunteer with one mother. Volunteers receive initial and ongoing training.

This project now has 60 volunteers matched to women throughout Yolo County. According to Mary Jo Bryan, who has done an excellent job of coordinating the volunteers, participants, and activities of the project, more volunteers are always needed, particularly in West Sacramento. If you are interested in participating in this program or would just like more information, please call Mary Jo at 371-1966.

CommuniCare Health Centers is justly proud of the Sister/Friend Project for its area wide recognition of excellence and for providing such an important service for local women.

'Sound Off!' is back.

The popular 'Sound Off!' opinion call-in feature will return on a trial basis. You may call your opinions in to our 'Sound Off!' line, 371-8055, and we'll consider them for publication. The line will be available by Thursday.

Ground Rules:

1. Please speak clearly and keep it brief! If it takes more than 25 or 30 words, it should probably be a letter to the editor.
2. No anonymous cheap shots! If you want to criticize someone, please write and sign a letter to the editor. It's only fair.
3. No politicking! It's tough to separate sincere political opinions from "hidden agenda" or misleading ones when they're delivered anonymously, so no campaigning allowed (again, put it in a letter!).
4. Have fun!

The News-Ledger:

Yolo County's last local, independent newspaper.

Letter Policy:

The News-Ledger welcomes your opinions for its 'Letters to the Editor' section.

To be considered for publication, letters must be signed and include the author's address and telephone number (which will be kept confidential). Letters should be brief and may be edited for length or objectionable content, although the News-Ledger attempts to print letters in their entirety.

Send your submissions to the News-Ledger, P.O. Box 463, West Sacramento, CA 95691.

Deadline is the Saturday before publication.

Speed bumps and other measures will be subject of public workshop on speeding

From the City of West Sacramento

The City of West Sacramento Engineering Division will be conducting a public workshop during the regular planning commission meeting at 6 p.m. on Thursday, May 4. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce preliminary information about the city's effort to develop a speed reduction program and to solicit input from commission members and the public. The workshop will focus on the types of traffic control devices and geometric design features that are appropriate for use in the City of West Sacramento. A short slide presentation will be made by city staff that highlights each type of control and how it can be used to control speeding in residential neighborhoods.

All planning commission meetings are held in the city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento. All interested persons are encouraged to attend. If you would like more information before the workshop, please call Steve Krahn of the West Sacramento Engineering Division, at 373-5850.

Saechao in girls doubles, 6-1, 6-3. Bouttavong and Peter Santizo lost hard-fought matches, 5-7, 3-6 and 3-6, 3-6, respectively, and Truong played well in falling to the G.E.L.'s undefeated #1 girls player Ericka Riedel 3-6, 0-6.

As close as these singles matches were, the doubles losses were even closer.

The mixed doubles team of Fisher and Phouanglasy won the first set 6-2 before fading 3-6, 1-6, and the boys doubles pair Ahmad Fazel and Vong Lee played the marathon match of the day, 6-3, 5-7, 5-7. Despite the loss, the gutty Raider effort surprised the more experienced Falcons, who, with more than half their team made up of regulars at the Auburn Racquet Club, may have been overlooking R.C. That probably won't be the case this week in a rematch at Colfax.

The final match of the week wound up with the same result as the first, a 7-0 Raider victory, this time in Marysville.

Fisher and Phouanglasy led the way, 6-0, 6-0, in a mixed doubles contest that lasted only 45 minutes.

Inthirath, Mirthala Santizo and Saechao capped off their undefeated week with straight-set wins.

Inthirath earned yet another "double bagel" 6-0, 6-0, and the girls doubles team won 7-6 (7-2), 6-2. Inthirath is now 11-2 for the season, and as a team, Santizo and Saechao improved to 4-1.

In boys' action, Bouttavong breezed 6-3, 6-0, while the undermanned Indians were forced to default #2 boys' singles. This allowed Peter Santizo to pair up with Fazel in doubles, and they came through in the third set 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

Remarkably, Santizo was Fazel's sixth different doubles partner in the last six matches.

With two weeks left in the regular season, the Raiders are 5-4 in the G.E.L. and 9-6 overall. This week they travel to Colfax before returning home for a much-anticipated rematch with Golden Sierra, Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at River City. The Grizzlies defeated the Raiders 4-3 in a darkness-shortened match in Georgetown in March and have been clinging to third place in the league ever since.

A win by the Raiders would create a tie for third, behind undefeated Bear River and Colfax, whose only loss was to the first place Bruins.

Renaissance students at the Conservation Faire: Kizzy Wood, Saurabh K. Sharma, Shelly Taunk, Shafak Pervez, "River City Rita," Cindy Insixiengmay, Chanthaphone Inthirath and Sheeza Ashraf

149 students qualified for Renaissance this semester, an increase of over 200% from the inception of the program in fall, 1993. This program has been successful for four semesters.

Renaissance is a program that rewards students for their academic achievement and improvement, good attendance, and good citizenship. Students are recognized and rewarded with movie passes, free tee-shirts, fast food coupons, free homework cards, merchandise coupons, and discounts on school events. Also, the Renaissance program plans special events such as pizza parties, ice cream socials, movie and popcorn parties, and field trips. All of the rewards are donated by local companies and people in the community.

Each semester, the Renaissance advisers work hard to improve the program. They hope the program will expand and more students will be interested in Renaissance. This spring semester, the Renaissance program will have more special events planned for the students than past semesters. There will be a pizza and movie party, a special finals packet, and every Friday if students wear their tee-shirts and bring their student body cards, there will be a special surprise. Also, every Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday there will be a picnic area for silver and gold members to eat lunch and have access to a microwave.

Renaissance's latest activity was when they participated in the Conservation Fair '95, which was held at the Capitol on April 21st. They made two recyclable creatures named Renaissance Rita and Recycle Roy, which were made completely out of #1 recyclable bottles. They receiveda an honorable mention.

The main purpose of Renaissance is to encourage students to do well in school. At the beginning of the semester, a questionnaire was sent to all Renaissance members that asked their input regarding the program. Among the many positive responses, one Renaissance member said, "This program helps me really see that my grades should be my number one concern." That is the goal of the Renaissance program.

There are four levels in the Renaissance program. The blue level requires a .5 or better grade point average improvement, 90% attendance, and no "U" citizenship marks. The copper level includes a 2.0 or above grade point average (no D's or F's), 90% attendance, no suspensions, and no "U" citizenship marks. The silver level includes 3.0 or above grade point average, 90% attendance, no "U" or "N" citizenship marks, no suspensions, and involvement in the school and community. The gold requires a 4.0 or above grade point average, 95% attendance, plus all requirements for the silver level.

The gold level members are Robert DeShields, Clancey Dollard, Ty Fisher, Alonzo Garcia, Virginia Gentry, Katie Goeden, Chris Hasegawa, Douangchanh Lattasima, Sajid Mahmood, Bethany Monroe, Michelle Newman, Ivana Nikolic, Ami Patel, Raquel Peralta, Sarom Phoung, Khonthavy Phouanglasy, Yolanda Robles, Senh Saelee, Mirthala Santizo, Frol Savenko, Rishi Sharma, Saurabh Sharma, Sarah Sorbello, Shelly Taunk, Monique Toro, Hoang Truong, Marie Vasi, Andradi Villalobos, Trisha Warford, Zachary Williams, Kizzy Wood, Arsalan Yusufzai, and Renee Zwinge.

The silver level members are Sadik Ali, Sheeza Ashraf, Anna Balatsky, Bounthay Bouttavong, Judit Campos, Candice Carter, Daniel Clark, Denice Cole, Kandie Cornett, Sarah Covert, Leticia Farris, Arturo Favis, Fouzia Fazel, Ben Flint, Lilia Flores, Danielle Gaines, Lesya Ganaga, Angela Gonzalez, Jose Gonzalez, Amy Greenhalgh, Sean High, Daleen Holton, Niki Hussein, Cindy Insixiengmay, Chanthachone Inthirath, Chanthaphone Inthirath, Erica King, Julie Kolar, Kim LaBonte, Morris Lamar, Leslie Lamkin, Toua Lee, Erica Lopez, Daniellia Macias, Gerrit Markus, Daniel Martinez, Heather Mayhew, Shanika Meaux, Lilly Merva, Jessica Mostranski, Mark Munsinger, Irina Nelipovich, Jennifer Newkirk, Jose Peralta, Betsy Perkins, Shafak Pervez, Debbie Phayboun, Poonam Prasad, Cynthia Rodriguez, Gina Ruisenor, Meuy Saechoa, Meuy Saelee, Kae Nai Saetern, Lai Saetern, Muang Saeteurn, Chrissy Senna, Rebekah Shubin, Barbara Silveira, Toni Singsonexay, Davorn Sisavath, Vantha Som, Rachael Toomey, Michelle Turnbull, Kammy Ujagar, Ben Varakuta, Mary Vela, Alex Victor, Anna Vierra, Qais Wahidi, Wendy Wickliffe, Mark Wilson, Sheila Woods, Jeff Wright, AeNoy Xayasone, Lae Xayasone, Gulshan Yusufzai, Malalai Yusufzai, and Trina Zimmerman.

The copper level members are Ashiya Ali, Oksana Avetisov, Mary Balcazar, Zoua Chang, Malaikham Chanthavong, Adam DeGroot, Jayson Gawthorpe, Julio Gomez, James Holmes, Lyubov Ignatyev, Diana Khorn, Jose Lopez, Joanna Morales, Dawn Noel, Bouafiane Phanthavong, Rashika Ram, Michael Ringer, Joey Rubalcava, KaoChino Saetern, Kao tin Saetern, Meuy P. Saetern, Nai T. Saetern, Houa Thao, Carmela Torres, Lorenzo Vasquez, Angelica Vlasor, Boon Vongsa, Shawn Wickliffe. The blue level members are Tiffany Augustine, Thomas Clayton, Melissa Ferrell, Celina Flores, Jose Flores, Steve Hawkinson, Ronika Kumar, Margo Placencia, Nai H. Saetern, and Yelena Suprun.

The buff and the beautiful compete at Cal Expo

River City High weightlifting team will compete at the annual Northern California Weightlifting Championships (NORCAL) at Cal Expo on May 20. River City is the only school to have won five titles, including the men's and women's titles, last year. Coach Baker proudly stated, "We have won more team championships than any other school. We have a tradition, and we take pride in it. We work hard from September to May and the school should take pride in our championship."

The NORCAL women's record is held by River City student Sofia Savala. She has lifted 355 pounds in squat and 205 pounds in bench. Coach Baker averred, "Nobody can challenge her."

Coach Baker has been the strength and conditioning coach at River City since 1978, previously coaching at Washington High. Coach Marks also helps in the NORCAL weightlifting by teaching two weightlifting classes. Coach Baker extends an invitation to people to come out to Cal Expo and support the team.

Weightlifters in men's strength-to-weight competition
(two teams of five each), are Josh Meier, Dan Torres, John Phouthachack, Alex Victor, Angel Cardenas, Jonathan Favis, Jesus Martinez, Jose Martinez, Juan Acevedo and Justin Hanks.

Weightlifters in women's strength-to-weight competition are: Daleen Holten, Alyssa Murphy, Betsy Perkins, Sheri Manasero and Sofia Savala.

Weightlifters in the open competition are Sam Savala, Paul Barber, Joe Flores, Joe Arch and Jose Flores.

New golf team looks fore-ward to success this season against other schools

By Raquel De La Paz
Staff Writer

This year an addition has been made to our sports program here at River City: our first golf team in three years. Golf is a sport which requires skill, precision, and a lot of patience (especially to watch).

Varsity players are Anesh Singh, Aba Singh, Andrew Odor, Nick Neitzke, Kevin Bagdazian, Joe Chairez, Matt Flint, and Dennis Kerwin. Junior Varsity players are Dennis Gaines, D.J Scovil, Eric Stewart, Bryan Kanelos, and Travis Allen.

Math teacher and coach Jon West averred, "The team has really improved since the beginning of the season!" They have played in seven matches and are 2 for 5, defeating Vanden and Sacramento Country Day schools and losing to Colfax, Bear River, Marysville, and twice to Golden Sierra. Pretty good for our first season!

Tennis team may be the best since 1987, says coach Brooks

By Bethany Monroe
Staff Writer

Tennis, a sport that has always been played at River City High School, starts the spring season off with seven matches won and five lost. The season began February 1st in the new Golden Empire League with practices to prepare for league matches. David Brooks, who has been coaching River City High School tennis for six years, was very excited when nearly thirty people joined the tennis team, breaking the record for the number of students who have joined in one year.

This year's tennis team is a lot more experienced than in the past. Ten players with varsity experience are back this year. Their hard work from the previous years has paid off. Coach Brooks said, "This year's tennis team has the chance to be the best since 1987." The team members are working hard to reach that goal. Last year, the River City tennis team won a total of six matches. Not even half way through the season, this year's team has won five matches. Hopefully, the tennis team will continue to do well for the rest of the season.

The tennis team plays with a seven match format, which has been played at River City for five straight years. That means there are two men's singles, two women's singles, one men's doubles, one women's doubles, and one mixed doubles. There are only ten varsity players. The rest of the team is considered junior varsity, which plays exhibition matches.

RC students shake hands with Clinton

By Cristy Barraza Rubalcava

On April 8th, I met the President of the United States. I went to the California Democratic Convention at the Convention Center in downtown Sacramento. It wasn't just me, but I felt very special anyway.

Dr. Donna White, River City's new principal, asked me if I would like to go to the convention and say the Pledge of Allegiance in front of over 2000 delegates gathering there from all across California. Okay, I have to admit, it sounded pretty exciting in theory. I love performing, but I felt a bit hesitant about standing up there on stage by myself. I was relieved to hear Dr. White explain that some of the other members of the Academic Decathlon team were going to be on stage with me. Anyway, I was informed that Saurabh K. Sharma and Robert Lynch were to give the pledge with me.

The three of us were given instructions where to meet that Saturday morning at 7:00 AM. I never seem to be on time for anything when I'm nervous, so I ended up getting there with my mom and friends at around 7:20 AM. Actually, I think it was closer to 7:30 AM. Problems arose, because, silly me, I forgot my ID at home. To get past security and the Secret Service I needed to call my dad and beg him to jet over the bridge and bring me my purse. I've never felt so embarrassed in my life!!!

Co-Coach Carol Higgins, better known as the Higginator, watched me as I ran around like a teen in a mall with an unlimited Gold card in panic that I would not be able to get in. Dad zoomed over in warp speed, purse in hand (so much for sleeping in). Accompanied by our parents and friends we, (as in Saurabh, Robert and I) went to the front of the line.

Passing through security was an experience. They searched our purses and we had to pass through a metal detector.

The people who coordinated this conference gave our party front row seats. We were so close to the podium we could see the little step-stool five-foot tall U.S. Senator Barbara Boxer used.

A little bit later the security people took me, Robert and Saurabh backstage where we were given directions. The young lady who was going to sing the Star Spangled Banner was with us, too. She was so nervous that she made us jittery also.

After we did the pledge, the delegates moved on to official business. It was amazing how professional they sounded. Then it was time.

The lights went down. Music was cued. A montage of William Jefferson Clinton's efforts to help California get through a rash of bad luck came on the view screen. Then, the President, our Commander in Chief, walked on stage.

As he spoke, I actually listened to the man. I don't think I've ever listened to what he had to say before. I couldn't grab the remote and change the channel here. After he finished his half-hour speech he came down off stage and shook hands with the public. Then a really humiliating thing happened. While he was shaking my hand my good luck snake ring scratched the palm of his hand. The Secret Service officer right next to President Clinton yanked my hand from his and thoroughly inspected my ring to be sure it was not poisoned or anything.

In a moment he disappeared, but my ring had nothing to do with it.

Secret Service searches suspicious diapers at Demo meeting

By Yolanda Robles

The students that attended the California Democratic Convention in April were not the only ones with a memorable experience. Mrs. Carlisle, Academic Decathlon Co-Coach, attended the convention with her two children, Califia and Justus, and ran into some problems with the Secret Service.

Though Mrs. Carlisle had told the people from the Democratic Convention that she was bringing her children, they had neglected to relay the information to the Secret Service. Upon entering the Convention Center the Secret Service began questioning Mrs. Carlisle, asking her questions such as, "Do you belong here? Who are you with?" These questions were asked repeatedly. Mrs. Carlisle's childrens' stroller was searched, with the children still inside of it, including all of the childrens' diapers. Califia had her jacket pulled up over her head while the secret service scanned her body. Califia began to cry. Justus thought it was fun. Mrs. Carlisle was disturbed by the actions of the Secret Service. She felt they were not prepared for her arrival. After retelling the events to her family, her father said, "You should have left a dirty diaper in the bag."

River City students took top honors in the March 25 Business Education Science Team (BEST) competition. Toua Lee and Sean High won first place for the catapult, launching a tennis ball an estimated 200 feet. Hitesh Patel and Saurabh K. Sharma took first for their homemade rocket which reached an estimated 1700 feet. The judge exclaimed, "In my nine years of experience, I have never seen one go that high!" Shafak Pervez took second place in rockets. In Math Olympics, Shafak, Hitesh, and Saurabh took second and Handel Jackman, Toua, and Sean third. Hitesh also came in third in the individual competition. Saurabh and Hitesh plan to attend the MESA state competition on Saturday April 29, 1995.

Students from the Folsom Cordova School District, Roseville School District, Washington Unified School District and the Grant Unified School District competed.

"B.E.S.T's goal is to provide students interested in science, math and engineering careers with additional experiments not provided in their current classes," said Cynthia Cortes, B.E.S.T. adviser. "I enjoy exploring science in new avenues with my students," she added.

B.E.S.T. group took a trip to visit its sponsor, Quanterra Environmental Services laboratory, last fall. From left: Cynthia Cortes, Jayson Gawthorpe, Toua Lee, Roger Frieze, Saurabh K. Sharma, Ivana Nikolic, Sean High, Shafak Pervez and Rosa Bol

B.E.S.T. activities include constructing toothpick bridges, building motorless cars, customizing egg drop containers, and crafting hot air balloons with paper and glue. B.E.S.T. has taken trips to Sacramento State University, the Exploratorium in San Francisco, Physics Day at Great America, and to their sponsor, Quanterra labs in West Sacramento.

Yugoslavian student says diversity is the difference at R.C.H.S.

By Ivana Nikolic
Exchange Student

I am trying to recall my first week at River City, my first impression of an American High School. I knew a lot about the school system, because I talked to other exchange students from my country, yet there were many surprises for me, as well as confusions, and it is definitely different when you experience something rather than just talk about it.

Coming to River City was a major change in my education, but only one of many: a new country, new city, even a new family. In a new school,I didn't have thirteen classes anymore, and I was able to choose most of them, which I didn't have the chance to do in Yugoslavia. There I didn't have every subject everyday, it was more like a block schedule, and the school would end shortly before one o'clock. Here I only have seven classes, but finish school at three o'clock.

I remember my first period, it was Honors U.S Government, and I was really surprised that students here don't stand up when their teachers come into the classroom. In Yugoslavia, by standing up when any adult comes in, we, the students, show our respect for him or her. Even last week when a guest speaker, Mr. Gentry, came into my French class, I stood up. I was the only student standing up, but I don't know if the other students noticed what I did or not. When I realized it, I felt embarrassed, but at the same time I wanted to burst into laughter. Logically, eleven years of schooling in Yugoslavia often affects my behavior.

Whenever I see our principal in the hall and tell her "Hi" I remember the principal from my previous high school. Though I did have a nice relationship with her, I would never tell her hi or hello, because the relationship between the students and the faculty is much more formal than here. Students address their teachers in a polite form, and greet them with, "Good morning," or "Good afternoon."

The first month, especially the first week, was really different for me. There were many things that I didn't understand. Hall passes were something completely new for me. I knew I wasn't supposed to be late, but I didn't have any idea what it was all about. For the first time I had a locker, and rode a school bus. But I was afraid of one thing- not having any friends . I wasn't afraid of the problems with the language. I wasn't afraid of school and my classes. At home, I had a new family, ready to support me, but at school I desperately missed my friends from Yugoslavia. Of course, day by day my friendships became stronger. Now I know that when I go back to Yugoslavia I will miss the friends that I have made here, and the one thing I will miss most is their diversity. Here at River City it is not difficult to have friends who are from different cultures, who are native born or immigrants, African or Asian American, coming from Vietnam, India, Mexico, or Pakistan,who are Russian, Chinese or Afganistanian, and I am very proud to be a part of such a diverse school.

Taggers tell their trade secrets to The Review

By Saurabh K. Sharma
Staff Writer

Have you seen it? SKS markered on stop signs, bus benches, mail boxes and bathrooms? SKS spray painted on brick walls, wood fences, even on rail cars? It's annoying to find SKS written on your front door. But you won't because these are my initial's. However, marking territory has spread from the animal kingdom to humans. We call it tagging. Along with the tags comes graffiti art. Graffiti art is when an artist draws a mural along a wall sometimes conveying his thoughts and feelings. What kind of people are taggers and graffiti artists? What do professional artists think? How does the average person respond?

Tagging and graffiti started in New York City in the 1960's. Teenagers wrote their nicknames on neighborhood walls to mark territory. In 1971, the New York Times interviewed Taki 183, a youth living on 183rd street. Working as a messenger, Taki 183 used the subway to travel around the entire city, tagging his name, wherever he went. Seeing Taki 183 gain publicity, others followed his path, leading to the birth of the graffiti craze. Artists worked with many different forms, styles while painting on subway cars. Taggers start by practicing their tag, making it just right, then broadcasting it to society. Taggers become experts with paint cans, knowing every type of paint and stockpiling it at home. A New York subway car is 60'x 12' and may take an artistic tagger 8 hours to paint and about 20 cans.

I decided to find out what makes a real tagger tick. For this report, I interviewed a real tagging crew. One might expect a tagging crew to be a large band of unruly cutthroats. However, the crew I talked to for this report was none of the above. Attending River City High School, easily blending into the crowd, you might bump into them in the halls. They look like average teenagers. Unlike the average teenager, these students don't go home and sit in front of the T.V. These teenagers roam the greater Sacramento Area, and tag.

This crew consists of ten people, but some crews can range from 2 to 500. They have been together for three years, and agreed to be interviewed only if names weren't used. I soon found out that there are many different taggers in this area. Taggers wear baggy clothes, which didn't strike me as odd, until the whole crew showed up and they looked like a small army in uniform. One said, "They don't like our dress, but like our art." In their spare time, at home or in class, these juveniles spend an hour or more making pencil sketches of names, characters, and whatever is on their minds. They get together to share ideas and tag. Taggers keep a book with all of their pencil drawings and pictures of their work. After having an idea, they have to find a place to display their newly designed art. The crew I spoke to emphasized that they do not tag churches, private property or anybody else's tags. They put the drawing in a place where it won't be erased or "buffed" as they say. Busses or public places are a bad place. Since a full picture can take up to eight hours, a secluded private area or wall is needed. Some property owners let them tag certain areas. This crew has tagged Old Sacramento, Woodland, Light Rail, Rancho Cordova, Oakland, and "the whole 916 and 213 area codes," bragged one tagger.

'Someone's always trying to get you,' say local taggers.

'You have to fight for your name.'

To tag, one needs supplies. Spray paint is not sold to minors. Taggers steal it, or "rack it", from the stores. They "rack" whatever they can get: permanent markers, calligraphy pens and spray paint, preferring Rustoleum or Krylon brand spray paint, and Magnum 44 brand markers.

These teenagers tag because they are bored. One tagger put it simply, "You want to be better than the rest". Most of their families know they tag, but feel "it is better tan doing drugs." The families can't stop them. Most taggers are between the ages of 13 and 18. When they turn 18 the laws get stiffer but they know of a tagger who is 23.

A common misconception is that all taggers do drugs. According to my sources, this is not true, but some do. Some taggers, called tagbangers, are very violent. They carry guns and aren't afraid to use them. Unarmed crews have to be careful of them. This crew says they don't pack guns, but if someone were to give them trouble they have access to guns. After hearing about the guns, I asked if they are ever in danger. They replied in unison, "Someone's always trying to get you." Taggers work hard making their names, it is most important to them. "You have to fight for your name," said one tagger. They have to watch out for copycat taggers, taggers who steal others' tags and get them in trouble. One tagger told the story of how a copycat tagger used his tag to cross out a local tag. This got him in major trouble with that gang crew. He later found the copycat tagger and "took care of it."

When the cops come, all they have to do is pull the tip off the spray paint can and they are safe. But if they are in the act, the cops will chase them. After being caught, they are made to kneel on the ground like any other felon. One tagger told me that he and twenty other taggers were stopped by three cop cars. Once caught, taggers have to pay a fine which goes up with each encounter. They also have to do community services, clean up their tags, sometimes their parents have to help clean up the tags. Taggers have to go to into a tagger reform program.

I asked a River City High School art teacher if he considers tagging or graffiti an art. "No, (tagging is) rarely ever creative. I see the same logo's everywhere I go. I don't see it as valuable. It is so readily painted over, it has no value. Real artwork has value and is not covered up or destroyed. This is defacing public property. The artist should have pride in his work. The art should also be sponsored by others. Art has been a positive aspect of society. If you define graffiti as artwork it shows the decline of society."

A representative of the West Sacramento Department of Parks and Community Services also wishing to remain anonymous, says that ten to fifteen new acts of defacement occur each week. As of March 10th, 45 new areas new areas have graffiti that needs to be cleaned. Often, businessmen remove the tag themselves, but volunteer clubs like the Rotary often help the City. Last year the City spent from $6,000 to $7,000 to clean up the defacement. This was taxpayers money, your money, my money. Graffiti has no boundaries, occurring in all the neighborhoods, from Broderick to Southport. The source also said graffiti is "...on the rise, big time". To help stop graffiti the City has the Youth Diversion Program. These are taggers who are caught and forced to clean up their mess. Since 1991 they have cleaned 567 areas of defacement. In West Sacramento, if a tagger is arrested, the first offense is a misdemeanor with a $50 fine. The second time it become $200. The punishment can go up to working six months in Youth Diversion. The city can also make a tagger work four to ten days in the work project. A tagger can lose or delay his drivers license for a year. If caught more than four times, the punishment is juvenile hall. Generally, the punishment is dependent of the amount of damage. The state is working on passing, Bill 1550, which authorizes a the tagger's family to pay a fine of $1,000.

Along with the punishment comes new solutions. The city is trying to "put the negative into positive activities." They are having taggers make positive murals and art projects, but those who just want to tag will be arrested.

In the March 9th issue of the L.A. Times, Peter H. King proposed banning spray paint, statewide, border to border. According to King, spray paint was started as a labor saving device in 1949. Companies now sell 350 million cans per year. If spray paint were outlawed, it would leave spray-paint makers, hardware store employees and graffiti cleanup specialists unemployed.

In 1992, Chicago banned retail sales of spray paint and wide-tip marker pens, but enforcement has been delayed by appeals from the spray paint lobby. King contends that only taggers find spray paint indispensable, and that they wouldn't drive to Oregon and Nevada to stock up on spray paint.

I conducted a student poll about tagging and graffiti. Of ten students, chosen randomly, most were against tagging, and approved of graffiti if and only if painted with permission by the wall's owner.

Before I started this report, I felt that tagging was a serious crime, just like murder, tax fraud, terrorism and jaywalking. I believed in the Singapore way, whipping taggers. After spending countless hours with experts in every field of tagging, art, law enforcement, reading books and editorials, I have changed my opinion. I feel that graffiti art is good if done on a private wall with permission and with good taste. However, I am still against tagging. Defacing public property, or private property is still infringing on others rights. It costs somebody money.

'Wes Craven's New Nightmare' now can be your very own

By Cristy Barraza Rubalcava
Feature Editor

One of the greatest fright masters of all time, Director Wes Craven, father of the Elm Street Creep Freddy Krueger, has elevated his frightfully realistic scare tactics in his new movie, Wes Craven's New Nightmare, now available in video stores.

In the last Nightmare on Elm Street movie, Freddy's Dead: The Final Nightmare, Freddy was killed by his long lost daughter Maggie. Freddy followers were ready to accept the loss because he had done his best to horrify audiences over the past decade. Throughout the entire "Nightmare" series, Freddy, Wes Craven's creation, thought up new and creative ways to terrorize and massacre his innocent and unsuspecting victims.

New Nightmare brings back Heather Langenkamp, who portrayed Nancy in the original Nightmare on Elm Street and in its sequel Nightmare on Elm Street III. In New Nightmare she is herself, living in Southern California, trying to cope with unnerving earthquakes and obscene phone calls from obsessed fans. Heather is trying to live down her Elm Street role, but to no avail because Freddy-maniacs are everywhere reminding her of it. Director Wes Craven plays himself in the movie and Robert Englund & John Saxon play both themselves and their characters from the original 1984 Nightmare on Elm Street.

Heather receives a call from director friend Wes Craven, who says he needs her to play Nancy one more time. She wonders how Nancy can return to the series since she was killed off in the third movie. He expresses that he is dreaming again and from previous experience, Heather knows that means Freddy and another Nightmare film.

Robert Englund, the actor who gave life to Freddy by putting on the costume, reunites with Heather and reveals to her that he is disturbed by the recent dreams he's had. In addition to playing himself he is also Freddy.

Heather's world begins to splice with the Elm Street world, killing her friends and focussing on the destruction of her young son, Dylan.

Wes Craven's masterpiece movie begins to question: Where is the line between reality and make-believe, or is there a line????

If you enjoy being "creeped out", I highly recommend Wes Craven's New Nightmare!

And that's how I see it!!

... And the new M&M's hue is blue!

By Cristy Barraza Rubalcava
Feature Editor

They've gone and done it!! I knew it was coming but I don't think I can handle it!!! The M&M/Mars Candy Company has forever shifted the normal autumn color scheme with their new arrival... a blue M&M.

Red, orange, yellow, green, tan, and dark brown are the hues usually associated with the legendary packet of "melt in your mouth not in your hand" candies. The delicate balance of warm colors to dark may be affected by the newly added M&M.

In 1977, M&M/Mars removed the red M&M candies from the package because of a created fear of the effects of red dye #2, the dye that was used on the red M&M's. Its absence was a dramatic change for M&M's followers around the globe. The red M&M was on hiatus until its comeback in 1987. Children born during the "red dye scare" believed the addition of the red M&M was new, but it was just on vacation.

Freshman Vicky Rubalcava strikes a pose in her old M&M costume.

Last month, M&M/Mars held a nation-wide poll to choose the new color, or to see if the M&M's buying public even wanted a change. Ballots were available anywhere M&M's were sold. The company even set up an 800 number for people to vote electronically 24-hours a day. Choices were blue, purple, pink and no change for those who have phobias against drastic change.

River City's Journalism class conducted its own poll. We published the results last issue (March 29th), but just in case, here's a reminder: 43% of the students polled voted for blue, 41% voted purple, 6% for pink and 10% cast their ballots for no change.

As the Taco Bell commercial goes, "Change is good,"but that doesn't necessarily mean that it's easy!!!

Driver's Ed teacher: Don't hit the brakes, just 'hit the animal'

By Yolanda Robles
News Editor

"Hit the animal," Mr. Rackley said emphatically. Students are shocked to hear these seemingly cruel words. During sophomore year every R.C. student is enrolled in driver's training class were they learn all the rules of the road from instructor Mr. Rackley.

Mr. Rackley emphasizes each year that drivers are faced with many split second decisions.

One of the hardest decisions for drivers to make is when there is an animal in the middle of the road. A person's natural reaction is to swerve and avoid hitting the animal, but Mr. Rackley teaches his students the safest way to handle the situation. Mr. Rackley tells his shocked students to hit the animal.

I was one of the many shocked students. I thought Mr. Rackley was being insensitive and that there must be some other way of avoiding an accident without hitting the animal. But recently my view has changed. An accident in March involving six teenagers, three girls and three boys, from Carmichael made me think differently.

The driver swerved to avoid hitting a cat; as a result, he lost control of the vehicle and it went off the road. The car flipped over twice and the three girls, who were not wearing their seatbelts, were thrown from the car. One of the girls is in a coma and one suffered from severe injuries. The third girl died after being in a coma for a couple of weeks. The boys only suffered from minor injuries like scratches and bruises.

Because the California Highway Patrol does not keep the statistics of accidents caused by cars trying to avoid hitting animals, there is no way of knowing how many drivers lost control of their vehicles in this way.

The accident in March and many others could have been avoided if only the drivers would have hit the animal. The driver involved in the March accident will have to live with the knowledge that his split second decision caused one death and changed the lives forever of the other four passengers.

I consider myself an animal lover, but if I had to choose between the life of an animal or my life, I would choose my life. If a person is ever faced with this decision they should slow down and hope for the best. Of course, wearing seat belts is important to having a safe trip.

Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) and California Coalition Against Driving Under the Influence (CaDUI) offer a few simple traffic safety tips that every driver should follow.

*Buckle up. A seat belt is the best defense against the other guy's mistake.

*NEVER drive under the influence of drugs alcohol, ride with someone else.

*Look out for the other guy. Don't pay the price for someone elses mistake.

*Pay attention. If you're a passenger don't mess with the driver.

*Don't drive tired. Falling asleep at the wheel is hazardous to your health.

*Look out for your friends. No one likes to be told what to do, but its okay to care.

Please pay attention to these safety tips, because 40% of all teen deaths are caused by car accidents.

Spring break with a Sharma family field trip

By Saurabh K. Sharma
Staff Writer

This spring break the Sharma family had its seasonal road trip. The Sharmas have been taking road trips ever since I can remember (since the Carter years). It is a time of family togetherness, Doritos, high-fat, low-fiber eating, and visiting the bathrooms of the dirtiest gas stations in the West. There are reasons why we travel by car. We would take a train, but we want to live. We would take a plane, but I am Indian and they make me go through the metal detector five times just to be sure, and if I reach into my pocket on the plane, the flight attendants yell, "Duck!" So the Sharma family goes by car everywhere.

This trip was to Los Angeles. Yes, L.A., the City of Angels, currently occupied by devils, Death Valley II, and home of the most powerful person in America, Judge Lance Ito. We left Saturday morning, missing the cartoons. Since my law-abiding father is of high ethical and moral standards (and no, I am not adopted), he believes that the 55 MPH speed limit should be followed, even if there are no cops around. This means that we always get stuck behind those senior citizens (old people). You know them when you see them. They drive those 800-foot mobile homes, towing the 300-foot trailer, which is hitched to the 40-foot boat, which is hitched to the Geo Metro (the escape vessel). They sway back and forth down the road at 54 MPH. Passing them would result in going faster than 55, so we stay behind them. The embarrassing thing is when a '69 Galaxy filled with nuns passes us giving us a bad look.

On Sunday we reached Riverside, California. I plan to attend class at University of California, Riverside next year. Some say I need to get class, and I am one of 25 students given the chance to get a real medical degree in seven years instead of eight. There are quicker ways, like swiping the certificate from my family doctor when he is not looking or going to Guatemala, but this is the legal way.

I got the chance to walk around the campus. They had open house, and I saw some professors (they are the old ones who don't fit in), students (the young ones with the baseball caps, earrings and shorts). I also saw the lecture halls, where telescopes are required to see the other end of the room. I saw the book store. In college they expect you to buy a book (with money), and, no, you can't just come in and read it and leave. And the best part of the entire college, the part that brought tears to my eyes: they have a Pizza Hut on campus.

College is very different from high school. It costs money, people go there to learn on purpose, the pizza is better, and the professors are grumpier, even though they make more money.

Today's teens work for responsibility

By Davorn Sisavath
Staff Writer

Today's teenagers need to work. Most of them work to earn spending money for items such as clothes, CD's, and perhaps save up for a car. Teenagers mainly work in the service industries: fast food, restaurants, and retail shops. Working can bring independence to teenagers, allowing them to learn financial responsibilities and giving them a relief from asking their parents for money.

School should be students' first priority but many teenagers feel that if they are motivated students who are working to save up for college, then they are able to maintain their grades. At RCHS, there are restrictions on students who work. Students can work 24 hours during the school week. To receive a work permit, the student must have 80% attendance each grading period, passing grades with D's and if they do have F's then they must have a 2.0 GPA. About 10% of the students at RCHS work, with a majority of them juniors and seniors, says Mrs. Rodland, Career Information Specialist.

At RCHS, there are two programs that enable students to be aware of future job fields. The Regional Occupational Program (ROP) is available for juniors and seniors, and students can usually earn 15 credits for on-the-job training. Students enrolled in the Work Experience Program must attend a one-period class each week for which they earn up to 10 credits, in addition to working at a paid job. For both programs, students must meet two criteria: a 2.0 GPA and 80% attendance.

Experts feel that working can be good for teenagers

Junior Carolina Avina has been working at Round Table Pizza for about a year. While working part-time during the school year, her grades stayed the same. She feels that working gives her a sense of responsibility in managing time and money. Carol not only works to spend on material items, but she gives a share of her paycheck to her parents. She likes working because she feels independent and it gives her a challenge in managing time and school.

The majority of students working at RCHS are juniors and seniors. Many of these students like Beth Ford, Senh Saelee, Danielle Gaines, and Jose Flores feel that working can be fun and that attitude counts. Work also allows them to learn how to manage time effectively with school work. Most of these students save up for college tuition and anything else they need for school.

Working gives senior Danielle Gaines a sense of responsiblity because she doesn't have to ask for money from her parents. She has been working at the Sacramento Sweet Company for one and a half years, and the work environment is like a family, she says. Work doesn't affect her grades for she is an honor student.

Experts feel working can be a good experience for teenagers, depending on the number of hours worked. They learn that consistency counts-- showing up on time and being reliable which gives them a good sense of 'adult' responsibility.

The Review welcomes your letters!

Questioning the questions

Dear Editor,

I recently read the article, Question In The Quad. The topic was, "If you could ask the president one question, what would it be?" The questions (in response) ranged from nude America, to changing the country, to the president's standards, to playing BASEBALL!!!? Come on. We're almost adults. Can't we think of better questions? For example, "Why don't you try to raise the minimum wage?" That's by far a more intelligent question to ask.

When asking people what they thought about the school after reading the questions, they said the school was full of morons. Might I also say that this paper is distributed through out an entire city with many people with the same opinions. That's not a reputation I'd like this school to have.

I don't know if this was supposed to be a humorous article or not. If it was I'm not laughing. I sincerely hope that The Review doesn't publish any more articles that can scratch the freshly painted reputation of this school. Thank You for your time.

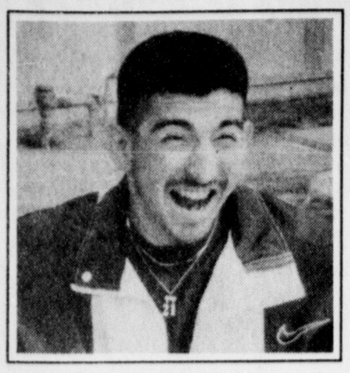

Concerned Student,

Question on the Quad

By Cristy Barraza Rubalcava
Feature Editor

During the fun month of April our Journalism staff decided a fun question would be more appropriate. "Who's your favorite Muppet" was the question.

We received some fun answers:

Animal because he's just crazy. He doesn't care what nobody thinks he just goes "ahhhhh"!!
- Angel Cardenas

(prefers to remain anonymous, due to freshman status)

Miss Piggy is such a ham. It's like Fatal Attraction of the animal world the way she always chases Kermit.
- Anonymous Freshman

Kermit because I like the way he talks. He has a sexy voice.
- Alyssa Murphy

Photo did not turn out. Rumored to be a vampire.

I like Ralph because he is a musician. He plays like he loves it.
- Peter Ramirez

Oklahoma City bombing shakes kids' faith in future

By Melissia Mejia
Staff Writer

Oklahoma City, Wednesday, April 19, a building is bombed, half the building is gone. Why? Why would anyone do this? We are not at war with any other countries, so why? Was it the monster within? One American has already been arrested in direct connection to the bombing. Two other Americans have been charged with conspiring to build bombs, and are being held as material witnesses in the Oklahoma City bombing. How could someone call himself American and do this to fellow Americans? Furthermore, how could someone call himself human and then go do this to other humans? To innocent children? To mothers, fathers, sons, daughters, grandparents? Why?

The way I heard of this news is that my mother came running up to me and hugged me as I opened the front door. She was crying. I had no idea why and was a little confused by her actions. As she was telling me of the news, I started thinking about all the parents who will never get to hold their children, of the latch key kids sitting at home waiting for mommy or daddy, but mommy will never be coming home again, and daddy is gone forever. I myself have family near Oklahoma City, and I suddenly feared for them.

A few days ago, one of my teachers was telling the class about her son. It seems that even though she tries not to watch the news when he's around, he still knows about the bombing. He is only three years old, and yet look at what he must face: not only the immediate destruction and death, but also a lifetime of uncertainty. Uncertain if his day care will be there tomorrow, or if he will still be safe there.

The apparent reality that someone who calls himself both American and human could do this, had created an uncertain future for us all.

Students & smoking:

Today's kids know Joe Camel

By Bethany Monroe
Staff Writer

Teenage smoking is a major issue in the United States today. There are 3.1 million teenagers who smoke. The average starting age is fourteen and a half. That means that about 3000 teenagers start smoking each day. That is too many teenage smokers. Teenagers are the prime target of cigarette advertising. The tobacco companies gear their advertising to young people because they can be new customers. Advertising impacts kids. 91% of six-year-olds know who Joe Camel is, and 69% of teenage smokers smoke Marlboros, which is the most advertised brand.

Why do teens smoke? Many teenagers say it is a way to look like you belong. If a teen feels insecure, smoking is something that they would have in common. Statistics show that 70%-90& of teenagers who smoke, mostly smoke at parties. Other teenagers say that smoking gives you the feeling of independence. That's what most teenagers want.

Some people who are depressed turn to smoking. Studies show there is a much higher rate of depression among teenage smokers than nonsmokers. This is not healthy for teenagers because nicotine is a "feel good" drug that will produce adverse effects in the long run. People who are suffering from depression can self-medicate themselves by smoking, and their depression goes undiagnosed. A person might not know if they are suffering from depression until symptoms are too severe.

Nicotine is a highly addictive drug. Actually it is the most addictive drug known, which reaches the brain in a few seconds and causes a craving for more. There are more than 3000 poisonous substances in one cigarette. Tars, nicotine , and carbon monoxide are just three examples.

Every day, 1, 200 people die from smoking-related illnesses. Compared to nonsmokers, smokers have a much higher risk of diseases such as heart disease, emphysema, gum disease, chronic bronchitis, ulcers, and allergies. Lung cancer is 25 times more common in smokers than nonsmokers. Smokers are a turn-off, because smoking stains teeth, fingers, and usually ages the skin. Smoking also creates second-hand smoke, which kills. Second-hand smoke is just as deadly as thesmoke inhaled by the person smoking a cigarette, and can kill a loved one. Smoke causes eye irritation in nonsmokers, make them cough, and causes headaches and allergic reactions.

Because we know now that smoking is unhealthy and dangerous, attitudes are changing. Smoking is not permitted in many public places, such as restaurants, airlines, hotels, motels, and car rentals. With these stricter rules, the number of teenage smokers is decreasing.

There are many ways a teenager can stop smoking. In the Sacramento area, the American Lung Association has a program for teens called Freedom From Smoking in Teenagers. There are also programs at the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association, or at River City you can talk to Magdeline, a counselor for drug and alcohol problems.

Get your hair cut, help bomb victims

On May 6th & 7th, Blondie's Hair Salon will be giving haircuts for $20.00 each in Downtown Plaza, in front of Macy's.

All the proceeds will go to the Oklahoma City Relief Fund. So if you would like your hair cut while helping out fellow Americans, please stop by.

Police log

The items in this report are based on initial write-ups in the log of the West Sacramento Police Department. The facts have not been confirmed through trial or investigation. The reports are therefore unverified.

For this reason, names or exact adresses involved in these incidents are not printed here.

April 25, 12:30 p.m.

A suspicious car was reported on Alabama Ave. Officers contacted the driver and left the scene. A caller reported that the driver had dropped something just prior to the contact, and picked it up again after officers left. The police returned, re-contacted the suspect, and found him the 26-year old man to be in possession of heroin.

April 25, 9:40 p.m.

A 29-year old San Pablo man was reported to be at a Sacramento Ave. location holding a knife to himself. Police found he was slow to respond to instructions, and the man admitted having smoked PCP. He was arrested.

April 26, 7 p.m.

A 58-year old West Capitol Ave. man was found in a Walnut St. yard attempting to steal about 100 lbs. of aluminum cans in a bag. The resident identified the man to officers, and the suspect was arrested.

April 26, 11:05 p.m.

Officers stopped a vehicle in traffic, and a passenger fled. The driver was placed in a patrol car while police tried to determine why the passenger fled, and then saw a small bag of a white powder at the feet of the driver. The driver was arrested, and the powder was tested positive for methamphetamines.

April 28, 10:50 a.m.

Three West Sacramento men were seen moving an air compressor trailer from a field near Citrus St. Police determined the unit had been stolen last year, and the men were arrested.

April 30, 1:40 a.m.

A 22 year old man was arrested for striking his pregnant wife several times, injuring her lip and cheek.

May 1, 8:47 a.m.

A Burrows St. woman reported being harassed by telephone calls in which a computer voice was heard.

May 1, 12:34 p.m.

A caller reported the theft of a vehicle's license plates on Todhunter.

May 1, 5:50 p.m.

A car with four or five teenage boys in it drove away from a local station without payment for about ten dollars worth of gas.

May 2, 2:10 a.m.

An officer observed a car pull over next to a prostitute and then pull away when the prostitute saw the officer. The officer pulled the car over and informed the driver he was being stopped for "trying to pick up prostitutes." The man "spontaneously" answered, "How did you know?," and was arrested.

Locally filmed Buster Keaton movie screened

From Louisa R. Vessell
West Sacramento Historical Society

The West Sacramento Historical Society will hold their general meeting on Tuesday, May 16, at 6:30 p.m. at the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library, 1414 Merkley Avenue.

Steamboat Bill, Jr., starring Buster Keaton, will be shown. The movie's co-stars are Ernest Torrance, who was very popular during the silent film era, and Marion Byron, who was 17 years old at the time of the film. Steamboat Bill, Jr. was Buster Keaton's last independently made comedy, which he also co-wrote. The film was made mostly in West Sacramento, along the Sacramento River, during 1927, and was finally released in 1928.

Keaton was 31 years old when he made the film. This early film footage is significant, since it shows the Sacramento River during the 1920's.

The film is free and everyone is invited to attend this event. For further information, contact either Bryan Turner at 371-6915, or Louisa R. Vessell at 451-5749.

City blood drive is scheduled for next Tuesday

The City of West Sacramento is sponsoring a blood drive for the Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Center on Tuesday, May 9, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The drive will be located at the Best Western Harbor Inn, 1250 Halyard Drive, West Sacramento.

Donors touch the lives of patients suffering from cancer or leukemia who are undergoing chemotherapy, children and adults who need heart or transplant surgery, new mothers and newborn babies, hemophiliacs and people with other blood diseases, burn and accident victims and more. Because each pint of blood can be separated into its various components, it can help us to three patients in need.

Giving blood is safe, and the entire process takes about an hour. You cannot get AIDS or any other disease through the donation process. Sterile needles are used only once and then discarded. The only blood you are exposed to is your own. To give blood you must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds, and be in good health, free from cold and flu symptoms.

For more information or to make an appointment, contact Kryss Rankin at 373-5800.

Due to a conflict with a county-wide educational awards dinner on Tuesday, May 9, the regularly scheduled school board meeting of Tuesday, May 9, has been rescheduled for Wednesday, May 10, at 4 p.m. in the district board room, 930 West Acres Road.

Cleversy deployed

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Kenneth R. Cleversy and the rest of the crew of the 9,500-ton cruiser USS Chancelorsville are headed to the Western Pacific Ocean and Arabian Gulf in a Middle East Force (MEF) role.

Cleversy, the 28-year-old son of Ronald and Reba Carlander of West Sacramento, is a gunner's mate aboard the Ticonderoga-class cruiser. He operates and maintains the ship's weapons systems.

Its powerful engines and state of the art Aegis combat system, a computer operated command and control system, make the Chancelorsville one of the U.S. Navy's most formidable warships.

Aegis is designed to simultaneously collect, evaluate and display combat information; launch and guide missiles to their targets; and share tactical information with other craft.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
Case No. P95000017

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JENNIE DASSONVILLE:
A PETITION has been filed by JEAN TUTTLE in the Superior Court of Yolo County.
THE PETITION requests that JEAN TUTTLE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests the decent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on May 23, 1995 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 4 located at 725 Court Street, Woodland, California.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. the time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

FACTS & FIGURES

(NAPS)—Here's some enlightening news about our economy: According to a Pennsylvania State University study, the indirect effects of coal production on the U.S. economy are more than six times the direct ones, extending to just about every other economic sector and every region of America.

Pajama Game

The drama department of River City High School, in cooperation with Thespian Troupe 3129, presents The Pajama Game, which will run May 4, 5, 6, 11, 12 and 13 at 8 p.m. at the Ezer K. Matthews Memorial Performing Arts Center at Yolo High School in West Sacramento. General admission is $4; students and seniors are $3.

Bus Trip

The Golden Years Club of West Sacramento is sponsoring a bus trip to Oroville, California, on June 28. Tours will be made to the Chinese Museum and the Lott Home. Also included is a trip to see the Oroville Dam. The cost is $17 per person. For reservations or more information, please call Bernice Gwinn at 371-4974.

Waste Collection

Yolo County Department of Public Works and Transportation is sponsoring a Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day on May 20, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the Yolo County Central Landfill, located on County Road 28H, east of County Road 102. Poisons, solvents, paints, gasoline, batteries, cleaners, pool chemicals, automotive fluids, used motor oil, and aerosol cans will be accepted; no commercial, agricultural, medical or infectious waste, please. For more information, call 757-5566.

Clean-Up Walk

Members of all community religious organizations and all citizens are invited to take part in the Community Clean-Up Walk, sponsored by the West Sacramento Ecumenical Ministry Association, on Saturday, May 13, between 3 and 4:30 p.m. at the northeast corner of Jefferson Blvd. and West Capitol Ave. Bring a garbage bag, lawn chair or blanket/towel, and a refreshment to share. For more information, call Marge Beach at 371-8804.

Ecumenical Group

The May 11 meeting of the West Sacramento Ecumenical Ministry Association will be held at the Riverbend Senior Manor, 664 Cummins Way, for a noon brown bag luncheon. Representatives and leaders of area religious groups are invited to attend this interchurch, interfaith association, for the purpose of working together for our city. For more information, please call 371-8804.

Magazines Requested

The magazine sale table at the Turner Branch Library is in need of magazines of all types. Please leave them at the front desk of the library, 1212 Merkley Ave. Over $200 worth of magazines are sold each month, most of them for $.10, so a large supply is essential. Also accepted are hard-back books, paperbacks, records, video tapes, and books on tape.

IEAC Meeting

The Indian Education Advisory Committee of Washington Unified School District will meet on Thursday, May 11, in the multipurpose room at Bryte Elementary. Topics to be discussed include the resignation and replacement of the current Indian Education Resource Teacher, student attendance at the American Indian Education Conference, and the grant proposal for the 1995-96 school year. For more information, call 371-9300.

Police interviewing

West Sacramento's police department is performing candidate testing this week to fill several vacancies in its ranks.

According to Lt. Ron Moore, the department currently has two empty positions, and a third may be created when the city processes a "matching funds" arrangement to complement a federal grant for a new officer.

In addition, there are four personnel with long-term injuries whose status is unclear.

"Regardless of whether you disagree or not with all of the appellants' points, the traffic safety issue will not just go away.

"Denying our appeal will jeopardize the safety of everyone who travels on Jefferson south of the bridge. Not only will Southport residents lose, all the citizens of West Sacramento will lose when the city pays off the lawsuit to the next traffic fatality's survivors," he said.

Councilman Wes Beers, who wrote the resolution three weeks ago declaring the traffic corridor unsafe, proposed that the issue be continued until May.

"There are four or five changes that have to occur before the corridor will be safe. Put the application on hold until we have a very specific proposal on how we're going to solve it. In don't know if the applicant is going to be wild about it, but frankly that is not an issue," he said.

Other issues brought up by residents included the fact that Southport residents were not notified of a February planning commission public hearing.

The law requires the city to notify all landowners within 300 feet of a proposed development. Since there are only four landowners that close to the Gateway property, very few of the Southport residents knew of the February hearing.

Children's Center on KJAY

The Children's Center at the Bryte Elementary School site is today's topic on the Chamber of Commerce radio show "Kaleidoscope," which can be heard between 12:05 and 1 p.m. on Radio KJAY. Jeanne Hanna, from the Washington Unified School District, will be interviewed by Lane Shapiro.

Organizations and individuals wishing to participate and discuss topics of local interest are encouraged to contact the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce. Included in the program is a local community calendar.

Library needs your gift of books

Donations are needed for the next Friends of the Library booksale. The sale is scheduled for Saturday, June 3, and Sunday, June 4, in the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library community room, 1212 Merkley Ave.

Hardback and paperback books are accepted year-round at the library during regular business hours. Donors can take the books to the circulation desk or ring the buzzer at the rear delivery door on the east side of the building for assistance with large quantities.

Proceeds from the booksale and other fundraisers like the magazine sale table help fund the "extras" at the library such as videos, children's programs, leased bestsellers, and now, audio-books.

The library staff is especially pleased with the quality of the donations. Many of the donated books are processed to fill gaps in the collection or to replace damaged books. Each book that the library puts into the collection has a gift plate with the donor's name, if known, or "donated by A Friend of the A.F. Turner Branch Library."

Please call 371-5612 for library hours and upcoming events.

No one hurt in series of local city shootings

By Steve Marschke

An Evergreen Ave. house was hit by gunfire Monday night and two more were hit on the 1400 block of Park Blvd early Friday morning, but no injuries were reported.

Lt. Ron Moore said the West Sacramento Police Department is "still doing followup, and we have some leads and suspects" in the cases.

He added that some suspects were caught in a vehicle with a weapon, and were charged with unrelated crimes. Ballistics information or other evidence could yet implicate them in the drive-by shootings, he said.

Opening lead — four of spades.

The laws of bridge stipulate that a player must follow suit if able to do so. The failure to meet this obligation is called a revoke, and the penalty for revoking is usually one or two tricks, depending on the circumstances.

Here is an extraordinary case of a revoke that occurred many years ago in a tournament. West led a trump, won in dummy with the king. South would ordinarily have gone down one — 200 points — losing three aces and three trump tricks, but, as the result of a revoke by West, he wound up making two spades doubled with four overtricks!

At trick two South led a diamond toward his hand, hoping East might have the ace and permit the singleton king to win. West inadvertently played the ace of hearts on this trick, instead of the ace of diamonds, and then, thinking he had won the trick, played the ace of clubs next.

At this point the revoke was discovered and the tournament director was called. He correctly ruled that the revoke was established, since West had played to the following trick; that the previous trick, including the ace of hearts, stood as played, with South's king of diamonds winning the trick; and furthermore, since West had led to the next trick when it was not his turn to play, that the ace of clubs was an exposed card which had to be played at the first legal opportunity.

South now cashed the ace of spades, and West, having no spades, was forced to discard the ace of clubs on it. All of declarer's hearts and clubs were now high, and since he had no more diamonds, the only tricks he lost were to the Q-J-10 of spades.

The two-trick penalty for the revoke was then applied (today it would be one trick) to the three tricks taken by the defense and the result was that South got credit for making six, which came to a cool 1,470 points. West had three aces, but never scored a trick with any of them!
